Chapter 1 by Isaiah Alston

"There goes the royals" screamed people in the audience filled with awe.

But it was true, the royal family was a sight to be seen they were all beautiful stars. There was young Mariana Castor who was very mature for her age. She had big blue eyes that were complimented by her blonde hair that extended down to her shoulders. Unfortunately today her blonde plumage of hair was tied neatly into a bun. The royals were often called the bird family. And when they would speak of Mariana they would compare her to a canary. A tender bird.

Next up in the list of royals was Jude Castor. Jude was an oddball. For one he was the only person in the Castor family to have dark hair. Although it was true from a very young age Jude started wearing darker clothes. It wasn't until a month ago that he adopted the black hooded cape that stopped a little bit past hist waist. He was slim and healthy boy. He was a wealthy boy. Not only taking advantage of the money that he was born into but he was also very gifted in business...and lying. The only thing left to talk about is his eyes. Those pitch black pit less eyes. He was aware of how scary his eyes were. In fact it is his one sensitive point. Don't talk about his eyes! That's why he is always compared to an angry raven.

Last but definitely not least Axel the king of all of Alora. But definitely the ugliest of all. His eyes were an ugly mix between green and blue. He was not a small man, but not big either. He was sort of in between. But there was something a little off about him. The way that he looked at his children was unnatural. He was often compared to an eagle.

But one thing the commoners did not know. If the royals were birds, the commoners were just worms. And the birds are hungry.
